

ECOWATER CANADA PLEDGES ITS SUPPORT FOR WORLD WATER DAY 2010

March 1, 2010. Mississauga, Ontario - In celebration of World Water Day on March 22, 2010, EcoWater Canada will donate a portion from every sale in the month of March to help support AMREF Canada and the Wabano Centre for Aboriginal Health in their goals to bring clean, safe drinking water to people in Canada and around the world.

"We are very enthusiastic to be taking part in World Water Day this year says Paul Godin, President of EcoWater Canada. "With the help of our dealers across the country, a portion of EcoWater product sales in March will be donated to AMREF Canada and the Wabano Centre for Aboriginal Health, which we feel truly commemorate the essence of World Water Day. Our support will help improve access to clean water sources among vulnerable communities in Africa and support water education programs in Canadian Aboriginal communities."

Designated by the United Nations in 1992, World Water Day is an international day of observance and action, drawing attention to more than 1 billion people worldwide that lack access to clean and safe water sources. The UN has chosen Communicating Water Quality Challenges and Opportunities as the theme for World Water Day 2010. For more information about World Water Day, visit www.worldwaterday.net

"Water is something we often take for granted." Says Godin "We drink it, cook with it, bathe in it and use it as a utility every day without thinking about how many people do not have access to clean and safe water. Join us on World Water Day and throughout the month of March to celebrate water and the vital impact this precious resource has on our daily lives."

To find out more about what EcoWater Canada is doing for World Water Day, visit www.ecowater.ca

About EcoWater Canada

An industry leader since 1925, EcoWater Systems is the world's largest manufacturer of residential water treatment systems. EcoWater has consistently offered its customers innovative, state-of-the-art technology, quality products and excellent post-installation service.

EcoWater Canada is leading the way in "green" water purification. It is the first water treatment company to receive the zerofootprint Certificate of Compliance for water treatment products. EcoWater Canada has also created a first of its kind recycling program, specifically designed for used Reverse Osmosis (RO) water filtration cartridges.

About AMREF Canada

AMREF is the world's leading African Health development organization. Founded in 1957 with headquarters, history and feet on the ground in Africa, AMREF empowers the most vulnerable people towards better health. Working closely with African communities and governments, AMREF's projects fight disease, strengthen health systems and train health workers. In 2005, AMREF won the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, Award for Global Health, for making major and lasting contributions in Africa. For more information visit amrefcanada.org.

About the Wabano Centre for Aboriginal Health

The winner of the 2008 Tommy Douglas Celebration of Medicare Award, The Wabano Centre for Aboriginal Health is an urban centre that provides quality, holistic, culturally relevant health services to Inuit, Metis and First Nation communities of Ottawa. The centre also engages in clinical, social, economic and cultural initiatives that promote the health of all Aboriginal people across Canada. For more information visit www.wabano.com.

Contact information

Infinity Communications
Alan McLaren
alan@infinity-pr.com
O - 877-257-5556
M - 416-573-2307

Paul Godin
President
EcoWater Canada
godinp@ecowater.ca
905-361-8517